Know Your Customer (KYC) Policy

1. Customer Identification

All customers must be identified using a government-issued identification document at account opening. Identification records must be refreshed at minimum every three years for standard-risk customers and annually for high-risk customers.

2. Ongoing Due Diligence

Customer risk profiles must be reassessed whenever a significant deviation from historical transaction behavior is detected, including new beneficiary countries, large increases in transaction volume, or new counterparties that do not match the customer's declared occupation or business activity.

3. Enhanced Due Diligence Triggers

Enhanced Due Diligence (EDD) is required when a customer's account shows: (a) a sudden large transaction following a long period of dormancy, (b) transactions to or from a jurisdiction not previously associated with the customer, or (c) declared income that is materially inconsistent with observed account activity.

4. Beneficiary Verification

New beneficiaries receiving transfers above EUR 3,000 for the first time should be verified against the customer's stated purpose of payment. Analysts should request supporting documentation when the relationship between customer and beneficiary is unclear.
